

ABSTRACT

A novel two-dimensional patterning method enabling two-dimension patterning without using any photosensitive material and ion milling, wherein a two-dimensional pattern is formed by destroying a blister provided on a substrate by electron or ion irradiation.